Shiprock, Navajo Nation

Shiprock, New Mexico has an important place in Navajo mythology. While the rock is the focal point of many legends, one explains how the land morphed into a giant bird that carried the ancient Navajo people to safety.

These ancestors of today's Navajo people were fleeing from a warring tribe, and the bird emerging from the earth was the answer to the Navajo shamans' prayers for rescue. While resting after the long journey, the Bird was trapped by the Cliff Monster and a bloody battle followed. After, the bird was turned to stone as a reminder of its great sacrifice.
