ABOUT THE AMERICAN INDIGENOUS TOURISM CONFERENCE

Now entering its 26th year, the annual American Indigenous Tourism Conference (AITC) is the only national conference dedicated to growing cultural tourism in America's indigenous communities.

Every year the conference attracts more than 300 attendees, who attend for the networking opportunities, the high-level keynote sessions, and the informative breakout sessions led by some of the leading hospitality industry experts.

The American Visitor Industry

The tourism industry is critical to the American economy. In total, the industry represents nearly 3 percent of the entire national Gross Domestic Product and supports some 9.5 million American jobs. With the distinctive cultural, heritage, culinary, and agritourism offerings available throughout America's indigenous lands, tourism provides strong economic benefits for these communities. Additionally, Native American, Alaska Native and Native Hawaiian enterprises provide numerous contributions to local, regional, state, and federal tax bases, making the development of tourism in these areas a win-win situation.

Native Tourism Industry

One in four of all American Indian Alaska Native and Native Hawaiian (AIANNH)-owned businesses are in the hospitality sector, accounting for more than 40,000 businesses. These hospitality businesses employ more than 110,000 Native and non-Native employees and generate more than $15.7 billion in annual sales.

AIANNH hospitality businesses significantly outperform their non-hospitality counterparts in annual sales and number of employees.

The American Indigenous Tourism Conference paves the way for tribal inclusion within the larger tourism infrastructure, while also guiding the conversations that help indigenous communities find their own success in the hospitality industry.

Sponsor AITC

Sponsors of the American Indigenous Tourism Conference help AIANTA lead these critical discussions, while also providing the framework tribes and indigenous communities need to develop, introduce, grow, and sustain cultural tourism.

About AITC 2024

The 26th Annual American Indigenous Tourism Conference is scheduled for October 28-31, 2024 at Paragon Casino Resort in Marksville, LA. AITC is hosted on the homelands of the Tunica-Biloxi Tribe of Louisiana. For more information, visit aianta.org/aitc.
